Introduction

This is the place where the 1987 Japanese film Ni-ju-shi-no-Hitomi was shot.

The film is set during World War II, and tells the tragic story of one female teacher and her 12 students – a story of teacher-student love in war times. The opening set was reconstructed here, reproducing the village where the story took place in those times.

The grounds are full of nostalgic views that let you experience the world that appears in the film. There are many things to see here – the wooden school Misaki-no-Bunkyojo; the Tsuboi Sakae Bungakukan, which introduces the author of the original story; the Gallery Matsutakeza Eigakan, a theatre where the film is shown constantly; the Cinema-no-an, which introduces famous Japanese movies from primarily the 1950s; and the main actress Takamine Hideko Gallery and the collocated Book Cafe.

The official shop Chirrin-ya sells original products, and you can try the distinctive Japanese flavor of Soy Sauce Soft-Serve Icecream.
